Try planting a windowsill garden in the kitchen and fill with a vast selection of herbs or use large pots and bring in huge green palms and fragrant trees into the empty corners of any room.

Terracotta is one of the best materials to plant in because it is porous and allows the plant root system to breathe. Many master gardeners would never use anything else, as it consists of a pure form of harvest clay and makes an earth friendly alternative for planting in. Unfortunately, it also breaks down over time with constant fertilizing and watering. All terracotta clay is prone to cracking and is known for its breakability. Fortunately, Arizona Pottery specializes in the packing of terracotta pottery whether it is one pot or an entire truckload of pottery.

A well chosen pot enhances any area by adding color and fragrance. As you look at the design of your home or office area, imagine the desired feel that you want to create. Is your garden formal with ivy and evergreens or a fun mix of planting materials and colors? Do you want small pots in groupings or a few large pots with bushes and fruit trees?
